Another Chicago Dynamite Crank Makes Terrible Threats.

Declares He Will Blow Up the Imposing Armour Institute, with Its Founder and President.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.-Armour Institute at Thirty-third street and Armour avenue has been threatened with destruction by a dynamite crank, and it is said also that the lives of Philip D. Armour, founder of the institute, and Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, its president and pastor of Plymouth Church, have been placed in jeopardy by the same individual. Neither Dr. Gunsaulus nor Mr. Armour will say a word concerning the story of their own lives being in danger, but at the same time it is positively known that Dr. Gunsaulus has declared that a man, who was at one time connected with the Armour Institute, has threatened to blow up the institute with dynamite at a time when such a deed would prove a terrible calamity. When the threat was made, the Doctor by his persuasions had for the time being converted the would-be dynamiter and the latter departed promising not to carry his threat into execution. He had a wild look in his eyes, however, as he had later on several occasions when Dr. Gunsaulus met him on the street.

Dr. Gunsaulus furnish him with money or get it from Mr. Armour. The millionaire is a member of the congregation of Plymouth Church and a warm personal friend of its pastor. It was on this that the crank counted when he demanded that Dr. Gunsaulus use his influence with Mr. Armour in order to procure the money. When the request was denied by the pastor then came threats of blowing up both him and Mr. Armour as well as the institute. Beatrice Gunsaulus, the twelve-year-old daughter of the pastor, announced two days since that "a man with a pistol has been following my papa around and one day a man wearing a light overcoat came to the house and papa was afraid to have him around." That was the extent of the little girl's information, and she vouched for its truth by saying: "My father told me that much Dr. Gunsalus to-night refused to say anything about his personal danger, but said

The story is that the crank demanded that 'It is true that threats have been made to blow up the institute with dynamite. A man who was connected with it was discharged and when he left he remarked to me: " don't care: I can fix this place any day with a little dynamite.' I told him that any further talk of that kind would lead to his arrest. He said he did not mean anything, and went away. I have seen him several times since, and I am still a little apprehensive concerning the institute. Concerning myself and Mr. Armour, I guess we are all right up to the present time."

SOME FAT DIVIDENDS.

Thirty-Four Manufacturers of Fall River Have Done Fairly Well.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 24.-The list of yearly dividends of the Fall River cotton manufacturers, just issued by G. M. Haffards & Co., stock brokers, shows the capital stock of thirty-four companies to be $20,378,000 and dividends averaging 7.96 per cent., amounting to $1,622,340. These have been paid during the year. The list does not include the Durfee mills, private corporations, Stevens manufactory and the Fall River manufactory, which has paid no dividends during the year. The Pecassett mills decreased their capital stock in September, having paid 3 per cent. on $800,000. The Granite paid 7½ per cent. on $800,000 and 1½ for the last quarter of the year on present capital of $1,000,000. These dividends cover a period of business varying to a greater degree than has ever before been the case in a single year.

William E. Blackstone Submits the Paper to President Cleveland Which Will Go to Every Nation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.-Mr. William E. Blackstone has presented to President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham the memorial adopted by the World's Columbian Commission asking that steps be taken to secure arbitration of international disputes. President Cleveland had made reference to this subject in his annual message, and today expressed gratification that so much had been accomplished. Secretary Gresham said he would take measures to have a facsimile of the memorial sent to ail foreign governments, and they will be asked to take steps to bring about a conference to carry out the plan which originated at Chicago. Mr. Blackstone was made honorary commissioner for the purpose of securing signatures to the memorial, and, acting under a resolution of the commission, he has obtained many indorsements, securing the signatures of the commission from some forty different nations which participated in the exposition. They include Sir Richard Webster, of England; Geo. R. Cockburn, of Canada; Enrique Dupuy de Lorae, of Spain; Admiral Maurity, of Brazil; Dr. Anton von Palitreches Palmforst, of Austria; Thekky Bey, of Turkey; N. Ya-mataka, of Japan; Prof. Dr. Sheppan Wartsolde, of Germany; Chun Quan Kee of China; also the commissioners from the States and Territories of the United States, the directors and officials of the exposition, many of the chairmen and speakers of the world's congress auxiliary, including Cardinal Gibbons, Mgr. Satolli, Dr. Phillip Schaff, Bishop Merrill, Joseph Cook, Mr. Moody, Rev. Alexander Mackay Smith, William E. Dodge, Lady Henry Somerset, Lady Aberdeen (Countess) and Josiah Quincy; also the editors of the principal daily papers of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington; ex-President Harrison, Secretary Morton, Controller Eckels, Chief Justice Fuller, Secretary Herbert, of the navy, and Daniel S. AURORA, Ill., Dec. 24.-An attempted murder and suicide was committed at Montgomery, a village two miles south of here Saturday night. William Yates and Ellen Ravette, aged sixteen, were en route to a Christmas entertainment when they encountered Adolphus Adcock near the church. Without warning Adcock drew a revolver and fired two shots at the girl, one taking effect in the right lung. The would-be assassin then cut his throat, inflicting three gashes, none fatal. The girl will probably die. No motive for the crime is given, although it is presumed it grew out of a love affair. This is denied by the parents of the girl. Adcock's father is employed as a bookkeeper in the office of the Grand Trunk railway at Detroit. Ad-

RECEPTION AT THE VATICAN

Special Dispensation in the Matter of Informal Ceremony.

Eloquent Language of the Great Catholic on the Subject of Labor and Capital the World Over.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.-Chauncey M. Depew was interviewed on his arrival here from Europe to-day. One of the Catholic papers of New York, in its correspondence from Rome, criticised Mr. Depew for the speech he made at Chicago during the fair, when the orator had severely handled the church in regard to its policy in this country. "Mr. Depew," said the paper referred to, "will get the cold shoulder should he ever come to Rome again." In regard to the attitude of the paper Mr. Depew said he did not care what its correspondent had to say. Life was too short, he said, to notice such trifles. Then Mr. Depew began to tell of his trip, and gave his views on Europe and Europeans generally.

"I did Rome in four days," he said. "Visited Pompeii, Naples and Vesuvius. In Pompell I saw some curious things that had been. taken out of the ruins. On one of the faces of the well-preserved bodies I noticed a drunken leer. Evidently the man was under the influence of wine when the city was overwhelmed, for the smile was still there just the same as it was two thousand years ago. I wanted to see the Pope, and was told that he could give no private audiences. His time is too much occupied with the affairs of the church all the world over. But on the evening of the day my letter was sent the Bishop of northern New York called to say that the Pope would see me in private the next day at 12 o'clock. I requested the Bishop to accompany me, as my knowledge of the language was limited. I regarded the present pontiff as the more progressive and more in touch with the spirit of various countries, and especially the United States, and I thought the conversation might rum upon difficult problems and delicate subjects.

"During the half hour I waited the Pope sent out a monsignor to entertain me. He was a charming man. I asked him what would be the ceremonial for me. He said the universal rule was for those presented to fall on their knees and kiss the Pope's hand on the papel ring, but as my appointment was unusual and I was a Protestant, he would inquire. The answer showed the exquisite tact of the Pope.

"The Holy Father," said the monsignor, "directs that in your case the ceremony shall be precisely the same as if you had a private audience with the President of the United States." As I entered the audience chamber the Pope arose, came half across the room, shook me cordially by the hand, requested me to be seated, and then resumed the papal chair. With the memory of Mr. Gladstone, who is nine months his junior, in my mind, I studied him earnestly, especially in view of the reports of his feebleness. He certainly is as vigorous as the great English statesman. He had been in constant audience since 8 o'clock in the morning, and it was then 1 o'clock. The questions presented came from all parts of the world, and were mainly on appeals to him."

NO NEW DOCTRINE. "The substance of its meaning was that in his encyclical he had stated nothing new. The principles laid down had always been the doctrine of the church. The times, however, with the troubles existing and growing more acute everywhere, demanded that they be given thought and attention. The right of man to his legally acquired property had always been recognized. It was the basis of the social system. Labor and capital are inseparable. Labor has rights which nobody must ignore, but labor must recognize the rights of capital. The church had always recognized the doctrine of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. We all came from the same heavenly Father, and all, whatever our condition or circumstance in this world, stand equal before Him and are equally acountable to Him for ourselves and for conduct toward our neighbor.

"One delegate told me that the Pope took the paper out of his hands and read of himself. The Pope expressed to me in very complimentary phrases his pleasure at seeing me; his knowledge of my position and life at home and his hope that I would enjoy the sights and treasures of the Eternal City and carry away pleasant memories and soon visit it again. "I told him that many thousand members of his church were in the employ of the company of which I was the president and it would be a great gratification to them when I returned for me to be able to tell them of the head of their church, whom they so profoundly revered. In a few minutes we were in the midst of an earnest and instructive conversation on property, 'ts rights and duties, of capital and labor, of employer and employes. I said that his encyclical on that subject was in accord with the opinion of the American people, and that I had made it the text of an address a year ago to a body of Catholic students at a Catholic college. "Then came a spiendid exhibition of 'the old man eloquent.' The Pope pressed to the front of the chair, grasped the arms and presented the appearance and vivacity of fifty years instead of eighty-five.

"Nearly ten minutes he spoke, and in clearness, directness, force and fervor. It was one of the most eloquent and impressive utterances to which I had ever listened. It is a misfortune that it could not have been taken down as it was spoken, but any report written would have lacked the fire, magnetism and all its delicacy. "The Pope made inquiries about America. I told him that at New York everything which happened there stood in the same relation to the rest of the country as London to Great Britain and Paris to France. Thus it was that more than usual prominence was given to anything done or said by his representative there, Archbishop Corrigan. "The Pope blessed a few simple aricles of plety I had with me to gladden the Christmas or New Year's of some Catholic friend when they know that they were direct from the hands of the Pontiff and were blessed by him. I was afraid of wearying him and arose to go. He took my hand and said that he had the profoundest respect and admiration and love for the United States and wished I would tell American people that he was much impressed with the world's fair and had done all he could to help; that he was much pleased and gratified to learn that I was always fair, kind and considerate for the employes of our company, and that I had never made any distinction between those of the Catholic gratification when I told him of Archbishop Corrigan. "Thus ended for me one of the most pleasant meetings with one of the most remarkable men of the age. He is one of the few men who are still active and vigorous long after the alloted span of life. The others are Gladstone and Bismarck. The Pope sent a message to me, but I received it when I could not return to the Vatican. The Vatican looks to Americans with more interest and attention in view of the rapidly increasing spread of socialism and other theories as her great field of the future." Mr. Depew also saw King Humbert, but faith and others. He also expressed his

AWARDS ARE SHAMS.

Foreign Commissioners Disgusted with Their Treatment at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.-The dissatisfaction of foreign commissioners with the treatment accorded them by the bureau of awards of the world's fair does not seem to diminish. Chairman Thatcher sent to Chicago last week the list of awards granted to foreign countries. Secretary Dickinson had them conveyed to the several commissioners. When Senor De Lome, of Spain, received his he receipted for the list and in addition wrote a letter to Mr. Dickinson, in which he said concerning the list: "The document is a worthless and useless list of names copied from our records, and is not the official statement the foreign commissioners asked for and obtained a promise from executive committee to receive. I hope it will be the last time I shall hear from the awards. In fact, I will be delighted if it is so. We will leave Chicago, all foreigners declaring that in the matter of awards we have been de-ceived and ill treated and that the exhibitors do not know whether they are prize winners or not, such a long time after all is finished."

Purse of $25,000 Can Be Secured for Corbett and Mitchell.

R. C. Pate, the Race-Horse Man. Wants to Hang Up a Prize-Mitchell Preparing to Go South.

ST . LOUIS, Dec. 24.-R. C. Pate, owner and president of the Mexican race track, has authorized the editor of a local sport ing paper to say that if the authorities in Florida would not permit the holding of the Corbett-Mitchell fight there then he would hang up a purse of $25,000 for the fight at his race track. Mr. Pate in his letter says: "When I telegraphed you that we could arrange to have the Mitchell-Corbett fight take place in Mexico, I was in consultation with those in authority and knew they would permit the contest to come off there. Now, while I am not certain, suppose they still hold this position and that being the case, I will offer the prize named for the battle. But before I make the official announcement I will have to again consult the Mexican authorities. I will be in St. Louis for one week. Then I will return to Mexico and if Corbett and Mitchell are willing to meet there, I will arrange to give them the prize named."

How Mitchell Trains.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24. - Pugilist Charles Mitchell arrived in this city this afternoon. He was met by William H. Robbins and escorted to the Union Club. where he shook hands with a number of prominent politicians. Shortly after o'clock Mitchell left the club and walked to the residence of Mr. Robbins, at Carlisle and Diamond streets, where he will stay until Tuesday morning, when he leaves for Jacksonville at 9:20 o'clock on Wednesday morning. He has decided to train on Anastia island. Mitchell seems to realize what he is going up against, and he is training faithfully. From 5:30 to 7 o'clock last night he exercised with two-pound dumb bells, sparring with Harry Darrin until the latter gave up exhausted, and then wound up by giving a dozen back handsprings. When he was through he was scarcely warm, and after a sponge bath he ate a dinner that would have astonished Philadelphia's biggest policeman. While sparring with Darrin Mitchell sent his right across and it landed lightly on his trainer's jaw. "If I can ever put that on Corbett's long jaw his goose will be cooked," said he. This was the only allusion Mitchell made to Corbett. Jim Hall and Steve O'Donnell will join Mitchell at his training quarters a week from to-morrow, and they, with Harry Darrin and the necessary servants, will constitute the party.

GENERAL BANKS FAILING.

The Old Fighting Statesman and Soldier

Said to Be Losing His Reason. WALTHAM, Mass., Dec. 24.-It is said that Gen. N. P. Banks is losing his reason. Last Friday night he rode into Swampscott on a Lynn and Boston electric car and wandered around in an aimless manner. He was taken to the police station and there he established his identity, but it was not thought at first by the police of that place that it was his right name. On investigating the case the officers found a explained that he had boarded the car in Boston about 6 o'clock, accompanied by two other men, one of whom paid the fares. The two men got off the car at Chelsea. On the night of the General's statement he was taken to Waltham by a Lynn police officer. All these facts were verified tonight by the police of this place and by members of the General's family. A reporter was told that General Banks left his home, on Main street, Waltham, Friday shortly after noon. At the time he was followed by an attendant, engaged for the purpose of watching the General, but the latter succeeded in eluding him, and then boarded a train on the Fitchburg railroad, which took him to Boston. It is supposed that the General wandered about the city until 6 o'clock, and then, thinking that he would return to his home, took a car Banks's health would not allow his being interviewed, and it was stated the members of the family could gather no coherent details as to the identity of his companions or of their intentions toward him. It is evident that General Banks's mind is not so strong and clear as it was once, and that it is failing rapidly there is no doubt in the minds of those who are intimately associated with him from day to day. Indeed it is said that he is not supposed to go around unattended. An evidence of the weakness of his mind is said to be seen by his frequent visits to the police station, mistaking it for the public library, and often he mistakes the library building for the City Hail. His family is greatly distressed over his condition.

Man with Mask and Wig Shoots Lawyer Hultz at Sullivan.

Ex-Sheriff Willis Believed to Be the Murderer and Is Promptly Placed Behind the Bars.

ALL FROM A FAITHLESS WIFE

More Trouble in Store for the State Normal at Terre Haute.

Programme for Indianapolis Meeting of Teachers Promises a Sensation-Result of a Practical Joke.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SULLIVAN, Ind., Dec. 24.-This city was startled with the news of a most daring assassination which occurred about 8 o'clock this morning. John C. Hultz, who has been a prominent attorney here for years, was riddled with a double charge of buckshot, one fired quickly after the other. The man who did the shooting wore both a mask and a wig, and he turned and made his escape through a network of alleys. Lawyer Hultz saw him approaching and turned about as the first shot was fired. He attempted to dart into a livery stable, but the second load tore a great hole in his back and he fell. It is said he called to a man in the rear of the stable, "Lem Willis has shot me." He died where he fell. Several saw the shooting, but claim the man's disguise prevent them from positively identifying him. Only a few persons were on the street and the assassin wasn't followed. Later his mask, wig and gunstock were found in a pond which is on a line from the place where the shooting was done and the residence of Willis, who is the exsheriff of Sullivan county.

No one was surprised that Lawyer Hultz thus came to his death, but the wonder is that the assassin selected the daylight in which to do the deed. It was known that Hultz's life was not safe in Sullivan. Willis and Hultz had been personal and political friends, the former having done more than any one to secure Hultz's election as prosecuting attorney. Some three months ago Willis suspected a criminal intimacy between his wife and Hultz and set a trap for them by telling his wife he had business in another town which would detain him all night. She drove him to the station and saw him get on the train and then informed Hultz that her husband would be away that night. At an early hour in the evening the husband returned and listening at the window discovered the guilty pair together. He had fastened the door of escape and broke in on them, opening fire on the intruder. Hultz was wounded in two places. The lawyer was undressed, but crawled a half mile to a friend's house, where a physician dressed what were thought to be fatal wounds. Willis put Mrs. Willis in a buggy and drove to her father's house, where he left her. Hultz recovered and Willis brought suit against him for $25,000 damages, not with the hope of recovering anything, but, as was said at the time, to crush the lawyer or drive him out of town. Hultz went to Arkansas on a hunt and not returning with the party, it was supposed he would seek another location. A few days ago he returned and announced he had come to stay. About an hour after the killing Willis was arrested by a constable who met him coming toward town. He claims to be inno-The circumstantial evidence against Willis s very strong. A small boy has been found who, just before the shooting, saw a man who, the boy says positively, was none other than Willis, putting on a false beard and wig in a stairway. The hostler of the stable was told by a disguised man just before the shooting to leave the stable. Immediately after the shooting the assassing ran out of town in the direction of Willis's farm, stopping at a small pond, where he wrapped the wig, beard and gun in the overcoat he had worn and threw the bundle into the water. At the time Hultz and Mrs. Willis were caught together Willis secured a divorce The damage suit against Hultz was still pending, Willis, it is said, having refused offers of a compromise. The popular sentiment is strongly against Willis to-night, although at the time of the former happening it was with him.

Lafayette Club Members Indignant at a Policeman. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 24.-Members of the Lafayette Club, a regularly incorporated association, have raised the question as to the power of a police officer to come into their building and place under arrest a visitor or a member without having first sworn out a warrant for his arrest. An officer who had been informed that a man had a pistol and was threatening to use it had followed him into the rooms of the club, and there informed him that he must report on the following morning at police headquarters. This action of the officer, it is claimed by the club members, was illegal, and they want the officers to remain out of the building unless they first procure warrants for those they are after. The af-fair has caused a great deal of talk. An attorney is quoted as having informed the police that the next one who tried to enter the club without a warrant would find himself in very hot water.

AN INTERESTING FIGHT. State Teachers' Association Will Turn Loose on the State Normal.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 24.-The Normal School war is on again and will be a prominent feature of the annual meeting of the State Teachers' Association at Indianapolis. The opponents of the school management to protest that in the selection of deposed members of the faculty to dewoman who had been in the car, and who liver addresses there was no purpose that they should discuss the issues in the controversy, but the fact is that in the arrangement of the programme the opposition was given significant prominence. Professor Humke, who was requested to resign from the faculty, and who prepared the programme, insists that the deposed professors are the best friends of the school. He says that in addition to the deposed professors there are twelve members of the alumni on the programme, and that therefore the school has not been ignored, which is true enough, but the question is as to how the twelve stand toward the recognized authority of the school. Vice President Sandison is the only member of the faculty who has a place on the programme, and it is an undesirable one, yet the Normal School it the recognized fountain source of public school instruction in the State. There is no doubt that much will be said and done by those present that will have a direct bearing in the struggle to oust the present management. If Governor Matthews can be found at that time he will be importuned by both sides in regard to the appointment of two trustees, which he will have to make the following week. The two whose terms will expire then are President Briggs, of Sullivan county, and Secretary J. H. C. Royse, of this city. Both were particularly zealous in supporting President Parsons in all that was done during the exciting times of last June, and the friends of the management are insisting that a failure to
